Leonard Bopp, Conductor

Conductor, composer and trumpet player Leonard Bopp is currently a senior at Williams College, where he is Assistant Conductor of the Berkshire Symphony, Student Director of the I/O Festival of Contemporary Music, and Founder and Music Director of the Chamber Orchestra of Williams. He is also Founder and Director of the New York-based Blackbox Contemporary Performance Ensemble, an interdisciplinary music ensemble devoted to critical engagement in social and political discourse through innovative and collaborative creative work. Current projects include a music/ecocriticism installation project with the Blackbox Ensemble, a composition project in collaboration with friend and poet Isabelle Doyle, and his thesis project on the politics of tragedy in music from the era of World War II.
