The SRH Septet

The SRH Septet is a Williams College ensemble dedicated to the exploration of the art of improvisation.

Some of our students are new to improvisation and jazz performance. This ensemble allows a nurturing environment for students to experience improvisation in a small jazz group setting and to develop the skills needed to express their thoughts through the complex medium of small group performance.

The art of improvisation takes years of study, trial and error, and performance experience. This along with dedication, hard work, and the knowledge of jazz harmony provides the skills needed to successfully negotiate chord changes.

This evening's performance will be a first for some of the groups members. I hope you will kindly welcome our septet of jazz new-comers with warmth and enthusiasm, as the beginning stages of improvising through live performance are often the most challenging for an instrumentalist.

Thank you for coming!
